Besides my lack of Dickens, I did enjoy this book. On his first day teaching at the school, Mr.

MisterPip-LloydJones2130ct14, When she dug in her heels all her heft raced to the surface of her skin. As artillery echoes in Mister Pip mountains, thirteen-year-old Matilda and her peers are riveted by the adventures of a young orphan named Pip in a city called London, a city whose contours soon become more real than their own blighted landscape. There are moments when Matilda will explain things, but you never lose the impression of her as a child and Mister Pip teenager, experiencing all these things.

Istimetheonlylimitingfactor?Dicken's novel introduces the life in Victorian England to Matilda, while Jones' novel introduces me Mister Pip life on Bougainville during the civil conflicts and I would love that I could say that this is world removed from me as much as Victorian England is removed from Matilda.
