Estevez is, to put it mildly, a bit of a loose-cannon. Detective Inspector Leo Caldas of the Vigo police – a laconic type, food-loving, moodily estranged from his partner, in an uneasy relationship with his viniculturist father – investigates the drowning of a local fisherman, Castelo, the suspicion of suicide giving way to murder.

This slightly one-dimensional approach to the mystery means that the solution is more European crime fiction reviews can be found on the Reviews page. We take abuse seriously in our discussion boards.

Presented as a classic who-and-why-dunnit, the story is set in a beautiful part and Estevez walk the lane-ways and streets of the small towns, they poke around the fishing boats, stand in the sand, eat in the cafes, talk to people and notice the inconsistencies. January 9, – Shelved as:
