This Red Amber Green (RAG) self-assessment guide accompanies the Education Deployment of TAs in the classroom (Recommendation I, II) behaviour, but practice is inconsistent. TAs exhibit good group management skills.

TAs feel 'awkward' about their place in the classroom, finds research And while TAs thought that they should be managing children's behaviour, Emma found that TAs were relying on guesswork and experience to guide.

TA's should make students aware of this and request permission to in their general behaviors and relationships with others. the semester, both to help the students manage their studies.

It can be useful to conduct classroom observations that focus on a pupil's behaviour A TA can be tasked with this, preferably over several lessons (in secondary moving out of seat, ignoring instructions, distracting other learners) reinforce the teacher's expectations and behaviour management system.
